

Chloris

Your Environmental Compliance Monitor!

What is Chloris ?

Chloris is a software program that keeps track your Agency's environmental practices. It can be installed at your site or used online. Data is saved in a SQL database, and can be exported into many formats. Chloris produces a number of reports, including those reports required by the OFEE and OMB. After these reports are generated and finalized, Chloris can submit them automatically to the proper authorities.

Why do we need Chloris ?

Chloris allows your Agency to keep track of its environmental practices, including purchases of Environmentally Preferable products. This type of tracking is required by several Congressional mandates and Presidential Executive Orders, most recently E.O. 13423 "Strengthening Federal Environmental, Energy, and Transportation Management". For example, a report on environmental practices must be submitted annually to the Office of the Federal Environmental Executive (OFEE). In addition, legislation is being discussed to require additional reporting on environmental practices, including purchases of Environmentally Preferable products. These reporting requirements change frequently, and Chloris is constantly updated to reflect those changes.

Reporting on environmental practices is also required by many Agency internal procurement policies. Chloris is customizable and can generate custom reports on environmental practices.

How do we use Chloris?

Chloris is easy to use and technical support is just a phone call or email away. To use Chloris in its stand-alone configuration, simply input a small amount of data about your environmental practices, and then generate Chloris reports on a quarterly basis to review your Agency's progress. Many reports must be submitted annually, and so to ensure that the data for your report is current, we recommend that you create and review a draft report on a quarterly basis. When the report is finalized, it can be submitted by simply pressing the "Submit" button.

Will we have to enter duplicate information?

No, as Chloris can be integrated with FPDS and many other procurement systems.
